

[illegible]

“Blessed is the poor in spirit” (Matt. 5:3)-- Not poor in substance, but spirit. This first beatitude has nothing to do with being materially destitute or financially bankrupt. Jesus is placing value on a humble spirit, on those who acknowledge a spiritual bankruptcy in and of themselves. Where there is an absence of well-polished pride and personal conceit, there is a wholesome dependence on the living God. Instead of, “No problem, I can handle it . . .,” there is a quick confession, acknowledging one’s own inadequacies...

And the promised blessing for such a humble, dependent attitude? “Theirs is the kingdom of heaven,” Jesus said. By living lives of such Simple Faith, beneath our Father’s sovereign, gracious care, we truly enter into what kingdom living is all about.

His Life Hid In Your Heart

Week 48: The Resurrection
By Jeremiah Tatum

In their haste to prove themselves right and their adversaries wrong, they proposed the scenario where a woman who had been married multiple times reaches eternity only to be confronted by all of her previous husbands, stymied by whose wife she will be. You can imagine their straw-man answers attempting to discredit the idea: "Maybe she's one man's wife for a few hundred years then moves up the

Imagine how truly ridiculous it was that they then carry that absurdity to Jesus, who is the ONLY person on earth who DOES have personal knowledge of the subject! As they mock and deride, Jesus can simply chastise them with, “you know neither the scripture nor the power of God!”
